After the following block is removed, the transport tray will be exposed. Check the tray for any broken detrite or clamps. Wipe the tray with multiple compressed air bursts to ensure no friction remains. Place a sleeve of heavy clamps on the transport tray, tips facing down. In most Bostitch models, a visual help will be printed on the tray or near the tray to help with loading. Replace the following block in your crib and press the top until the spring starts compressing. Keep pushing down the block until it fits into the crib and click on the place. Push down with force on the clamp arm to make a test clamp. Loading a clipper should not be too complicated when you get the way your clip works. Consider safety and keep children away from the stapler while you are changing the clamps. To avoid injury, never put your hand under the clamp arm when in use. Never use a stapler that is jammed or that you think you may be stuck. According to Bostitch, you can clear a congestion in some models by opening the magazine and manually removing the clamps. When buying replacement clamps, make sure you select the correct meter for your specific Bostitch clamp. If the clamps are too large, they can touch the clamp, but if they are too small, you may not be able to carry them or they can slide by the holes of your clipper without doing the job. done.
